

W. A. M'ATEE APPOINTED AS STATE OIL INSPECTOR
Gov. Baker Names Springfield Attorney to Succeed Asa W. Butler, Aug. 14.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 10.—Gov. Baker has announced the appointment of W. A. M'Attee, an attorney of Springfield, as State Oil Inspector, effective Aug. 14, when the term of Asa W. Butler, the incumbent, expires.

M'Attee is a member of the Republican State Committee from the Seventh Congressional District, and was an original Baker-for-Governor man. The position pays $3500 a year. Gov. Baker also announced that three or four of the eight regular Deputy Inspectors would be displaced by Sept. 1. He added that he has received 150 applications for the jobs.

In addition to other duties, the Oil Inspection Department is in charge of the enforcement of the collection of the State tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline, which went to effect the first of this year. The patronage of the department was increased by a dozen jobs through bills passed by the last Legislature.

LACK OF WHISKY IS BREEDING PING PONG RACE, SAYS MAN, 91

"One of Most Disgusting Sights Is to See Young Man Ordering Soda," He Asserts.

By the Associated Press
NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Declaring that the lack of whisky is breeding a "race of ping-pong players," Nathan Douchy, 91-year-old champion of rum and tobacco, has spoken his mind about what this world's coming to.

Celebrating his birthday a few days ago with friends at Darien, Conn., he attributed his age to whisky and smoking. Mrs. Alida J. Cumming, leader of the Stamford Women's Christian Temperance Union, promptly offered to appoint a committee to investigate what really made him live so long. She was certain it was not whisky. Yesterday Douchy replied: "My ambition has been to live to 100, and still drink whisky. Seems as though prohibition will stop me. Just what people consider whisky a thing to legislate against I don't know. They ought to legislate against soft drinks."

"One of the most disgusting sights is to see a young man ordering a soda. My dad would have licked me had he seen me drinking anything like that."

"We're getting too highly moral. We're being dominated by the feminine mind. In time we'll be breeding a race of ping-pong players. Football will be too rough; baseball too strenuous. Golf is one sign of our degeneracy. Poker is giving way to bridge and the like. It's not because of whisky, but the lack of it."

MISSING MAN'S BABY DYING
Father Disappeared Saturday; Child Has Pneumonia.
Dorothy Anderson, 6 weeks old, is in a serious condition at city hospital, suffering from an advanced case of pneumonia, and probably will die, according to physicians who are attending her. The child's father, Kelly Anderson, 1223 South Compton avenue, has been missing from his home since 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. According to his wife, he left home with his brother-in-law, Brian Hathway, and has not been seen since.

Important improvements in chassis construction give greater simplicity and afford increased performance. Refinements in body designs add greatly to attractiveness and comfort.

Every change has been made with quality as the prime consideration. Quality is the first law of General Motors. Enormous sums have been invested in more intensive engineering, in labor-saving methods, in reconstruction—wherever a better result might be achieved.

Naturally, great economies are attainable in such an organization as General Motors. It enjoys every advantage of quantity production; it sells in every market of the world. General Motors is passing these economies on to the purchaser. This makes possible the extraordinary values now offered.

The public may depend upon these values. Every car is a car of quality.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia" is Far Better than Soda
Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.
For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drug store.

LORD URGES DEEP CUTS IN MILITARY APPROPRIATIONS

Submits Recommendations to Coolidge; Army and Navy Secretaries to Get Hearings.

By DAVID LAWRENCE, Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
CONCORD, Mass., Aug. 19.—Deep cuts in the army and navy appropriations for the coming year, together with other substantial economies constitute the objective of Gen. Lord, director of the budget, who has just laid his program before President Coolidge. This does not mean that the reductions in size or expenditure on the military and naval establishments are assured because the War and Navy departments themselves still have an opportunity to debate the matter and urge a status quo, but it does mean that with presidential approval the burdens of proof will be on the secretaries of War and Navy.
Heretofore the heads of departments made up their estimates and submitted them in October to the chief executive for transmission to Congress. It was the congressional custom to pare down these estimates so department heads developed the habits of asking for more than they thought Congress would grant, a habit which has not altogether been discarded now that the department must convince the Budget Bureau of the value of specific requests for appropriations.
A Two-fold Job.
Instead of waiting till October, when all the departmental estimates have to be treated as one, there is so much work to be done that necessarily the figures cannot be given the detailed consideration they deserve. The present plan is for the Budget Bureau to study future needs all the time. Thus Gen. Lord already is consulting President Coolidge on some of the more important items in the budget and when the formal submission of estimates by the Cabinet occurs there will be much less work to do.
Gen. Lord has a two-fold job. Not only must he pare down the estimates of the departments, but when once they become parts of his budget, he must defend them against congressional cheese-parings.
The Director of the Budget has become, therefore, more powerful than a Cabinet officer and as far as contact with the President, he is more frequently in conference or in communication with him by letter than is any other official in the whole government establishment.
Gen. Lord is a man after President Coolidge's own heart. There have been rumors lately that Gen. Lord had been made an attractive offer from the outside to take an important executive position. There is no question that men of Gen. Lord's ability are rare in government business, because they so quickly are gobbled up by big corporations and concerns who are constantly on the lookout for men of administrative capacity and penetrating judgment, especially on economics.
Yet the Government cannot afford to pay a Director of the Budget one-fifth as much as private business can. Indeed, it is not exaggeration to say that some firms would pay Gen. Lord an annual salary as large as that of President Coolidge, namely $75,000 a year, believing that his ideas of economy would save his salary many times over in the affairs of a corporation dealing with millions of dollars a year.
Charles G. Dawes, the first Director of the Budget, took the position as a big sacrifice in time that might have been devoted to his private business. He picked Gen. Lord as his assistant and turned the job over with absolute confidence in the ability of his successor to swing it. Curiously enough the entire theme of the Coolidge administration has been economy and Gen. Lord has had an extraordinary opportunity to drive through his recommendations. It probably marks a turning point in the history of Government finance as the whole budget idea has depended on the moral support given it by the chief executive.
Word Carries Weight.
For a time it was supposed that the Budget Bureau would be dwarfed by the Secretary of the Treasury and that Cabinet officers having the ear of the President would override the Budget Director's recommendations but it has turned out the other way. The Budget Director has seemed to have as much influence in the situation as the President himself, and if anything he comes closer to being an assistant here than any other official of the whole Government. His word in nine cases out of 10 carries as against departmental recommendations and usually because he has a sound argument and never fails to back up his judgment and can bring to bear on each problem the relative value of an appropriation in one department as against an item in another so as to make the whole come within the budget.

LEMON JUICE BEST TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.
Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It cannot irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It cannot be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

VARICOSE VEINS

If you or any relative or friend is worried or suffers because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that literally hundreds of people all over the country are using with complete satisfaction.
Simply ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins, rubbing gently upwards and towards the heart, as blood in the veins flows that way. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller, and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. Emerald Oil is a powerful, yet harmless emollient, and is guaranteed by Wolff-Willson Drug Co., and Johnson Bros. Drug Co. and all good druggists.

Has Dawes' Confidence.
Yet the Government cannot afford to pay a Director of the Budget one-fifth as much as private business can. Indeed, it is not exaggeration to say that some firms would pay Gen. Lord an annual salary as large as that of President Coolidge, namely $75,000 a year, believing that his ideas of economy would save his salary many times over in the affairs of a corporation dealing with millions of dollars a year.
Charles G. Dawes, the first Director of the Budget, took the position as a big sacrifice in time that might have been devoted to his private business. He picked Gen. Lord as his assistant and turned the job over with absolute confidence in the ability of his successor to swing it. Curiously enough the entire theme of the Coolidge administration has been economy and Gen. Lord has had an extraordinary opportunity to drive through his recommendations. It probably marks a turning point in the history of Government finance as the whole budget idea has depended on the moral support given it by the chief executive.
Word Carries Weight.
For a time it was supposed that the Budget Bureau would be dwarfed by the Secretary of the Treasury and that Cabinet officers having the ear of the President would override the Budget Director's recommendations but it has turned out the other way. The Budget Director has seemed to have as much influence in the situation as the President himself, and if anything he comes closer to being an assistant here than any other official of the whole Government. His word in nine cases out of 10 carries as against departmental recommendations and usually because he has a sound argument and never fails to back up his judgment and can bring to bear on each problem the relative value of an appropriation in one department as against an item in another so as to make the whole come within the budget.

EARTH HAS SIX POLES
PHYSICAL, MAGNETIC
AND COLD, IN FSun Pours Out More Heat Wh Emerges at North Pole Than At Else at Two Periods of Year

Washington, Aug. 16.—Two of the world's rather general supply are monopolizing attention just now: the North Pole, in which of which Amundsen for a few days recently dropped from sight; and the North Magnetic Pole, whose machinations in the Arctic region have been the subject of the MacMillan Arctic expedition are seeking to circumvent. But these are not the only poles that the earth has, a bulletin from the National Geographic Society points out. "The earth's polar positions go by twos," says the bulletin. "Exactly opposite the North Pole is the South Pole, and in the hemisphere opposite the North Magnetic Pole is the South Magnetic Pole. In addition there is a pole of cold, both for the northern and southern hemispheres. The earth may be credited, therefore, with six fairly well recognized poles."

North Pole Exerts Greatest Force. "More has been written and thought about the North Pole, undoubtedly, than about all the other poles together. The northern hemisphere, with its concentration of population, has become the field for the world's greatest civilizations and its greatest populations. The North Pole has captured and held the popular interest because it is the most accessible place in the region in which most of us live—attempts to reach it was the 'great adventure' nearest home."

"In spite of the early lure which exerted the North Pole has been reached only once in all recorded time. Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary reached it on April 6, 1909, and spent 36 hours making observations in its vicinity. He found it to be not on land, but in sea, though a sea covered, of course, by thick ice. Through a hole in this ice five miles south of the pole Peary took a sounding, raising out 3000 feet of wire without finding bottom."

Every Direction South. "It requires imagination to appreciate the North Pole. It is the imaginary point where the imaginary axis of the earth emerges. As one stands at the pole, every direction in which he can face is south. In the summer the sun makes a complete circle near the horizon every 24 hours, never dropping out of sight; in the winter, if one could stand there, he would see the Polar Star directly overhead, while the other stars would appear to wheel around it. Standing still at the North Pole, an observer could merely pivot once every 24 hours. A man standing on the equator at the same time, however, would be carried along from west to east at the rate of 15 miles per minute."

Earth Has Poles. "It is believed that the temperature at the North Pole hardly ever rises above the freezing point in summer. This is in spite of the fact that during June and July and the first of May and August the sun pours out more heat near the pole than at any other part of the earth's surface. If the inclination of the earth's axis and its rotation did not bring about a corresponding period of darkness, the pole would soon melt all the Arctic ice and make the pole a heat center."

North Pole Wobbles. "The North Pole is rigid enough that it cannot be said that it is actually immovable. For reasons not entirely clear, it wobbles, describing a rough circular path about 50 feet in diameter about every 14 months. This motion which changes the latitude of the majority of places on the earth's surface by amounts ranging from a few feet to 50. Scientists are also ready to believe that the pole may have had a very different position at some time in the distant past, for coal deposits in the Antarctic and Ellsworth Islands and in the southern polar lands reveal conditions once held away. "The South Pole, twin of the

EARTH HAS SIX POLES,
PHYSICAL, MAGNETIC
AND COLD, IN PAIRSSun Pours Out More Heat Where Axis Emerges at North Pole Than Anywhere

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Two of the world's rather generally accepted theories of the sun's rays are being dropped just now: the North Pole, in search of which Amundsen and other explorers off their route, and the North Magnetic Pole, whose machinations in the atmosphere are being questioned by the National Geographic Society.
But these are not the only poles that the earth has, a bulletin from the National Geographic Society points out. "The earth's polar regions go by two," says the bulletin. "The North Pole, and the South Pole, and in the hemisphere opposite the North Magnetic Pole is the South Magnetic Pole. In addition there is a pole of cold, both for the northern and southern hemispheres. The earth may be credited, therefore, with six fairly well recognized poles."

North Pole Exerts Greatest Lure.
More has been written and thought about the North Pole, undoubtedly, than about all the other poles together. The northern hemisphere, with its concentration of land, has become the field for the world's greatest civilizations and most populous populations. The North Pole captured and held the popular imagination because it is the most inaccessible place in the region in which most of us live—at least, the reach it was the "great adventure" nearest home.

In spite of the early lure which tempted the North Pole has been reached only once in all recorded history. Rear Admiral Robert E.
Peary reached it on April 6, 1899, and spent 35 hours making observations in its vicinity. He found it to be not on land, but in the sea, though a sea covered, of course, by thick ice. Through a hole in this ice five miles south of the pole Peary took a sounding, reaching 5,000 feet of wire without finding bottom.

Every Direction South.
It requires imagination to appreciate the North Pole. It is the imaginary point where the imaginary axis of the earth emerges. As we stand at the pole, every direction is south. In the summer the sun makes a complete circle near the horizon every 24 hours, never dropping out of sight. In the winter, if one could stand there, the sun would be directly overhead, while the other stars would appear wheel around it. Standing still at the North Pole, an observer could merely pivot once each 24 hours. A man standing on the surface at the same time, however, would be carried along from west to east at the rate of 16 miles per minute.

It is believed that the temperature at the North Pole hardly ever above the freezing point of water.
In this in spite of the fact that during June and July and August of May and August the sun pours out more heat near the pole than at any other part of the earth's surface. If the inclination of the earth's axis and its rotation conform exactly to the physical poles, temperature records for the southern polar regions are rather meager, but it is probable that the southern pole of cold is in the highlands of the Antarctic continent, not far from the South Pole.

Due to the great land masses of the Northern Hemisphere, especially that of Eurasia, the northern pole of cold is far from "the North Pole. It is situated west of Verkhovsk, Siberia, about 200 miles inland from the mouth of the Lena River. This region is supposed to be colder in January than the North Pole itself and has
the lowest mean annual temperature of any place in which records have been made. It boasts a record of 94 degrees below zero, but its usual temperature during January is about 60 degrees below zero."

15,000,000 INCREASE FOR JAPANESE ARMY SOUGHT BY THE ARMY FOR MATERIAL strengthening of the fighting Establishment.
TOKYO, Aug. 10.—An increase of 15,000,000 yen ($7,500,000) is being asked for the army in the budget for the next year, which the Finance Department has forwarded to the Diet. The increase is for the material strengthening of the army establishment, either in arms or in armaments.

The increase asked for in the day to head the ticket of the Mc-Coy wing of the Democratic party, charged Tammany Hall with ingratitude in advocating State Senator Walsh for Mayor in the Democratic primaries.

North Pole geometrically and geographically, has not been the objective of nearly so many expeditions, yet it has been visited twice by man; by Amundsen in December, 1911, and by Scott a month later. The latter lost his life on the return trip. Unlike its northern twin, the South Pole is situated on land, such a large mass that it has come to be called the Antarctic Continent. Due to the large land area about the South Pole, that point has considerably colder summers than those at the North Pole.
In fact, so cold are the summers and so continual the winds that the entire Antarctic Continent is practically devoid of plant life.

In one sense the magnetic poles are truly the geographical poles for they have no celestial aspects. They cannot be located by any sort of astronomical observations. They lie more than a thousand miles from the true poles and are believed to be slowly changing position. These poles have their being because the earth is a huge magnet, probably due to its rotation. It is only with a compass needle or with certain electrical apparatus that the existence of the magnetic poles can be determined. It is their effect on the compass needle, on the other hand, that has made navigation fairly simple.

Magnetic Poles Not Symmetrical
The north magnetic pole lies on the Boothia Peninsula in the latitude of Point Barrow, Alaska, and the longitude of Omaha, Neb. To the north end of a compass needle points, the needle dips into the magnetic pole is approached, and when Boothia is reached, stands on its point. In the Arctic regions north of the pole, the needle points south, or if northeast of the pole, points southwest, facts which greatly complicate navigation in the North Pole. The compass navigation possible for the MacMillan expedition, the United States Navy is now constructing charts with "meridians" radiating from the magnetic pole instead of from the North Pole.

The south magnetic pole does not lie directly on the opposite side of the earth from its northern counterpart as one might expect.
If it had this theoretical position it would be situated directly south of the point of India on the seven-tieth parallel of south latitude. Instead it lies eastward nearly a quarter of the earth's circumfer-ence near the 155th degree of east longitude, and close to the eastern point of Australia. It comes much nearer to its theoretical latitude, lying at 72 degrees south, whereas the north magnetic pole lies at 70 degrees north. It is believed that the magnetic poles are rotating very slowly in opposite directions around the geographic poles.

Earth Has Poles of Cold.
The earth may be said to have a fifth and sixth pole, "poles of cold." It might be expected that the magnetic poles would be the poles of low temperature, but the arrangement of water, having a tempering effect, and land and altitude, tending toward cold, makes the theoretical poles of cold differ from the magnetic poles. The poles of cold are in the highlands of the southern polar regions are rather meager, but it is probable
that the southern pole of cold is
in the highlands of the Antarctic
continent, not far from the South Pole.

Due to the great land masses
of the Northern Hemisphere, especially that of Eurasia, the northern
pole of cold is far from "the North Pole. It is situated west of Verkhovsk, Siberia, about 200
miles inland from the mouth of
the Lena River. This region is supposed to be colder in January
than the North Pole itself and has
the lowest mean annual temperature of any place in which records
have been made. It boasts a record of 94 degrees below zero, but
its usual temperature during January is about 60 degrees below zero."

Establishment.
TOKYO, Aug. 10.—An increase
of 15,000,000 yen ($7,500,000) is being asked for the army in the budget
for the next year, which
the Finance Department has forwarded to the Diet. The increase is for
the material strengthening of the
army establishment, either in
arms or in armaments.

The increase asked for in the

ocratic primaries.

PHILIPPINES VIEWED
AS SOURCE OF RUBBERCommerce Department Finds Promise of 70,000-Ton
Annual Production.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The eventually bringing to the American rubber user a part of his crude supply. The Commerce Department, in a report today on an exhaustive investigation of the potential value of the archipelago for crude rubber, expressed the opinion that profitable production is possible there.

The report, representing many months of study, held that under favorable conditions an annual maximum output of 70,000 tons could be produced in the islands, in the southern portion of which approximately 1,500,000 acres are suitable for rubber raising.

The lack of political disturbances and the utilization of the present available labor forces in the islands were stressed as factors in reaching this estimate.

The report marks the completion of another stage in the department's world-wide survey of the rubber situation, started 18 months ago at the instance of Congress and the rubber trades, when it became apparent that the localized restriction of the plantation rubber output in British possessions might menace American consumers. In recent months high rubber prices, feared by the American industry at the outset of the British restriction program, have been realized.

Previous department reports have dealt with the British program as now established in that nation's colonies, while today's report was devoted to a study of the possibility of creating competitive plantations in the Philippines.
The investigation is being continued to study the advisability of expanding the crude output of South America, Africa and the Caribbean area.

Planting Under Way.
In the Philippines the survey disclosed considerable commercial rubber planting now under way with sufficient plantations in cultivation to give a highly favorable hope of the islands becoming a new source for rubber. The Para rubber tree, mainstay of the Asiatic plantations, has shown satisfactory progress in the more southern islands. Soil and botanical experts of the department found that the plant there less troubled by disease than in the plantations of Malaysia, and that on the islands of Mindanao, Jolo and Basilan, soil conditions are highly satisfactory in areas already charted. Importation of some labor and some equipment for the Philippines land legislation were recommended to facilitate commercial production.

The 70,000-ton potential Philippine output would compare with an annual import now of $40,000 tons by the United States.

RED ARMY UNSHATTERABLE, SAYS SOVIET COMMISSARHe Refers to It as Guardian of World Peace—Says It Rests on Will of Workers.

MOSCOW, Aug. 10.—On the occasion of making 6500 military cadet officers in the Red Army, of which the People's Commissar for the army and navy, issued a special order Saturday to both branches of the soviet fighting forces under his direction, in which he referred to the Red Army as a guardian of world peace.
The order warned enemies of the soviet that the strength of the Red Army, which rests upon the will of the workmen and peasants, is unshatterable.

"Increasing our army today by new commanders who are ready to give up their lives without hesitation for the great task of freeing the laboring masses, and who are the whole world that soviet Russia is busily engaged in re-establishing the national economic situation," said the commissar. "And its peaceful labor is under the vigilant guard of the Red Army."

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The poor, unknown and a Socialist, he asked Cesare to make a suit for him. "With a silk lining and a fine

A UNIQUE CHAPTER OF AMERICAN HISTORY

"The Rise and Fall of Jesse James"

By ROBERTUS LOVE

The James Boys Married Well and Were Good to Their Wives—Romances of Frank and Jesse —Proofs That Jesse James Was Chivalrous—An Episode in Baltimore. ...The story of the marriages of Frank and Jesse James forms one of the most interesting chapters in the narrative of their careers. Above is a portrait of Jesse James Jr.

It is an amazing fact that both of the Jameses married, and married well, in the very midst of their careers of outlawry. Each became the husband of a handsome young woman of irreproachable moral character. Nor in either case was there the slightest effort at deception upon the part of the wooling bandit. Both girls walked gladly, if not indeed gayly, into marital union with men who had been dodging Sheriff and Marshal, police and Pinkerton in a dozen states.

The further astonishing fact survives for record here that both of these were highly successful marriages, as judged from conventional standards. This is not to say that the two couples "lived happily ever afterward," although in the romantic meaning of the phrase they appear to have done so. Each of the hymeneal pairs lived and loved and struggled and endured together, husband and wife devoted and faithful, until death did them part. So far as the evidence indicates, Frank and Jesse were "good family" men.
Their wives were beyond suspicion.

But Frank James possessed, in degree approaching the superlative, the presence of mind which was his temporal salvation. My old and esteemed friend, the gentle and dignified Mr. Samuel E.
Allender of St. Louis, now chief special agent for the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co. and formerly Chief of Detectives in the St.
Louis Police Department, told me some years ago, at his desk at Police Headquarters, this story in illustration of the point mentioned:

Frank James in St. Louis.
"No doubt you recall that after Frank James surrendered to Gov.
Critchfield in 1883 and stood trial and was acquitted by a jury of Missourians, he came to St. Louis and was employed by the late Col.
Ed Butler, owner of the Standard Theater, as doorman at that celebrated home of variety. When he was so employed I was a young city detective, and I became well acquainted with the ex-outlaw. The neighborhood of the theater, as you know, was fertile for detective work.

"One night when the show was on I stood outside the door of the theater, chatting with Frank James. The curtain went down for an intermission, and the major part of the male crowd filed out to patronize the bar. In the crowd I spied a police character, some petty thief or pocket-pick. I stepped aside, led him away, called the patrol wagon and sent him in. A few minutes later the audience returned, the curtain went up and the show was closed. As I stood there again with James he remarked that he had seen me do an unwise thing when arresting the suspect. 'Why did you cover the fellow with your gun?' he asked me. I explained that such a procedure was not practicable in a city like this, where 40,000 arrests were made annually; if every officer whipped a suspect before he was taken to arrest he would be considered a put; in fact he wouldn't remain very long on the job.

"That's all right," Frank James said, "but you officers always get it when he least expects it."
"He then illustrated the point by relating a little experience he had had at a time when, as he put it, 'they thought they wanted me.' He said he was stopping in Baltimore, had a room built in a solid block of dwellings with no space between. One night he wanted something to eat, so he picked up a basket and went to an all-night market close by. On his way back to his lodgings with the market-laden basket on his left arm, his coat collar turned up and his hat brim turned down, he noticed a number of policemen walking up and down in front of his house, as it appeared from a short distance,
"I could think of nothing else," said James, "than that the officers had been tipped off to my rooming there, and they were making a raid. They had been searching the house and they were waiting for me to return. I was too close to them to turn back without arousing their suspicion. Directly across the street from the policemen I noticed a white horse hitched to a buggy; the street was lighted by gas lamps and the horse showed up quite vividly in the mellow gleam of the light. I decided to make my exit. Probably the officers, I thought, had the block surrounded.
My plan was to walk straight on past them if they didn't interfere with me; I would try to reach the home and buggy by shooting it out with the officers, and then Robert, the only child of this drive away as fast as the horse could travel.

"James said he walked along with his right hand on his six-shooter, which was harnessed under his left arm. His right hand thus was concealed under his coat and under the arm on which the basket hung. Approaching the bunch of officers, he edged out toward the curb, intending to walk around them as though he had not noticed them specially.
When he was opposite the officers, one of them reached out a hand to stop him. James sprang backward into the street, off the sidewalk, toward the horse and buggy, pulling his pistol from his place, but not quite getting it out —not so that it was visible to the policemen.

"Well, sir, what is it?—what is it?" James asked the officer who had tried to stop him. "Don't be so scared," said one of the officers, with an oath; "we're not going to hurt you." James again asked, "What is it?" expecting every second to find it necessary to open fire and "get" as many of them as he could, when another officer, in a rather gentle tone, said, "Say, don't be afraid of us;
we're not going to harm you, man;
we simply want to get men enough to serve as a jury in J.
Coroner's case where a man in the house next door to my house has died without medical attention, by natural causes or otherwise."
"James then saw," he stated, that the policemen were in front of the house adjoining the one where he roomed, instead of immediately in front of that house.
That seemed to end his story." continued Detective Allender, "but my curiosity prompted me to ask how he got along on the jury."

His Presence of Mind.
"I simply told them," said James, "that I was not a citizen of Maryland, that I lived in Washington, D. C., and I walked on into my house. That was the end of it so far as I was concerned."
"Frank James told his story to illustrate the narrow escape those Baltimore policemen had. It was struck by his great presence of mind as indicated by his rapidity in planning his escape, but more especially by his explanation that he was not qualified by residence to serve as a juror."

Jesse James was in his twenty-seventh year when he married Miss Zerelda Mimms, his first co-sin, who was of about even age.
The courtship was unusually long, almost nine years, and was carried on under difficulties sufficiently obvious. When the wounded young guerrilla was brought home from Nebraska, early in August, 1865, he was carried on a stretcher from a Missouri River steamerboat to the home of John Mimms, at Harlem, now North Kansas City. Mimms had married a sister of the Rev. Robert James.
The elder daughter of the Mimmses was the wife of Charles McBride, a well-to-do builder of houses in Kansas City. The younger daughter, Zerelda, named after the mother of Jesse James, helped to nurse the suffering boy back toward health.

It was late in October before the patient was able to be taken by wagon, from Harlem, to the old homestead near Kearney. Relatives have stated that Jesse and Zerelda, before he left the Mimms home, entered into a compact to be married if Jesse ever got well of his wound. Many months afterward, when at last he was able to get around outside the house, Jesse said to Mrs. Mimms:
"Ma, Zee and I are going to be married."

But the marriage was deferred from year to year. Miss Mimms, her mother having died, went to live with the McBrides. She attended school at Liberty. In Kansas City she became popular with the younger set in the social circle of which she was a member. There were suitors for the hand of the handsome blonde, young men who knew not that the fair Zerelda was waiting for Cousin Jesse. The latter was waiting for such time as he might be able to settle down and begin married life without interfering the happiness of his bride.
That time, as we know, never came.
So the cousins determined to take each other for wife or weal, love laughing at gunsmiths; and on the 24th of April, 1874, they were married at the home of a friendly neighbor near Kearney. The officiating clergyman was a paternal relative of the Jameses. That family, it seems, ran considerably to preachers.

The "Howards."

As in the case of the Frank Jameses, the Jesse Jameses necessarily concealed their identities.
Howard was the favorite surname under which they lived in more than one state; but there were other aliases, chosen to fit the changing environments. Two children came, Jesse Edwards and Mary.
The boy's middle name was in honor of Maj. John N. Edwards, the gallant Confederate veteran and famous Missouri editor who befriended Jesse James to the death, and beyond that young Jesse never knew his own name—first, middle or last—until he was nearly 7 years of age and when the fatal bullet made him fatherless and relieved the life of a family of further necessity for concealment of identity. His father always called him Tim; to his mother he was Eddie.

Jesse James, such was the extremity of his situation, never had the blessed privilege of going to his wife in presence of outsiders as Zee, the abbreviation he used in private. Other Christian names were invented for Mrs. James to go with such other selected surnames as the family employed from time to time. Jesse himself was Thomas, or David, or some other name as different from Jesse as could be found. One might fancy that there were many occasions when a slip of the tongue would have proved perilous.

The home life of the Jesse James family, discreetly aliased always, was in many respects of the great American average, in spite of everything. We have the testimony of neighbors in Nashville, in the Big Bottom country east of Nashville, in Kansas City and in St. Joseph to the effect that "the Howards" were by no means undesirable people. They were hospitable, particularly when they lived in Tennessee. On the Big Bottom farm there was a most entertaining of neighborhood folk. Mrs. Howard was a skillful cook. They were hospitable to invite the neighbors to dinner. Aged persons still living in that section recall with pleasure, not unmingled with a certain quality of awe, the delightful memories of a party, he would be called a party, he would be called a party, he would be called a party, he would be called a party.

One thing noticed by the neighbors was the chivalrous attitude of Mr. Howard toward women and children. Upon occasion, when a member of a party, he would utter a mild oath; but when women or children were present his language was as circumspect as that of a Sunday school superintendent in active service. Somewhere in this chronicle—and here it seems to fit in—must be told the harrowing tale of the 11 ladies that were not scalped by Jesse James. The affirmative version is found in one of the old blood-and-thunder books, probably having taken root from the wartime story to the effect that after Jesse's capture, the ladies of the party were slain in a skirmish in Northern Missouri, the scalps of two women were found dangling from the headstall of his horse's bridle.

Another Yarn Exploded.
According to the imaginative ro-mancers, Jesse James was a lady-killer in both the actual and the slang sense. In the autumn of 1864 the blue-eyed guerrilla boy of 17 was with Anderson's command at Fayette, capital of Howard County, Missouri. During a lull in the general slaughtering there was a dance in which the belles of Fayette tripped it lightly with the young guerrilla gallants. Certain of the overburdened Othellos aware of the girl's beauty, and her prowess as man-killers, Jesse felt that he was losing favor; he, too, must show 'em that he was from Missouri.

Quitting the hall of gaiety, he ran outside, where his warhorse was hitched to the yard fence.
Stripping from the beast's equipment a string of human scalps—the long and flowing tresses of no less than 11 deceased ladies—he rushed back and waved these grisly trophies in the faces of Fayette's fair. The girls were impressed. As spokeswoman for all her sex in Howard County, one of them was represented as saying, in a horrified tone:

"Mr. James, if you don't take those horrid things away this very moment, we'll never have anything more to do with you! Take 'em away—ugh!"
The discomfited lad took 'em away, and thereafter Jesse James never scalped another lady! This is perhaps the most ghastly of all the many lies invented with the object of showing up the outlaw as an inhuman monster. By way of offset we may relate a well-authenticated incident that took place aboard a railway train in Minnesota, shortly before the Northfield bank raid. A ma-shover was annoying a young woman in a day coach. The ma-shover, who was a man, had attracted the attention of several men, some of whom grinned, none of whom went to the girl's aid until a quiet-looking stranger arose from a seat several rows back and approached the miscreant.

"You dirty loafer," he remarked,
"get out of this coach, or I'll kick you out, right through this window!"
The dirty loafer got out. The indignant stranger returned to his seat. In the old family Bible book home the stranger's name was written thus, "James. Jesse Woodson, born Sept. 5, 1847."
In some respects this outlawed Missourian was had enough to suit the most exacting tastes in specific inquiries, but there is no authentic record that he ever harmed or in-sulted a woman.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—A wave of anti-Semitism is rolling over Central Europe. In Vienna, where the Government has been compelled to issue a proclamation welcoming the Stem Congress, there is an effort to stem the frenzied Fascist call for violence against visiting Jewish delegates.

Dispatches from Bucharest report martial law in Jaffa and Pek-schani, following a series of encounters between the Fascists and the Jews. One of the Fascist organs has circulated placards calling for wholesale pogroms. Bands of youths have made a practice of descending upon railroad stations and dragging from trains Jewish travelers, who are mar-shally beaten before they are permitted to proceed.

The Rumanian trouble arose from the beating of a university professor by a Jewish peddler after the former had insulted the Jew street vendor. Thereupon the Fascist students called for revenge.
The Vienna anti-Semitic movement was created by Fascists out of disorders attending a Republican rally which had no relation with the Zionist Congress.

The feeling is running so high that the best the Vienna Government can do is to state in effect in its proclamation that it can have nothing to do with a movement which aims to take the Jews out of Austria and put them in Palestine.

MUSSOLINI'S PLAY WRITTEN

ROME, Aug. 10.—The action in Premier Mussolini's play, concerning which there has been so much speculation, takes place, it was learned today, among the gypsies, and there is not a word of politics in the whole of it. Wandering actors, musicians, who are half Bohemian and more than half beggars, are the characters.

The first act takes place in an Italian village. A middle-aged member of a troupe of actors is supposed to be the father of a young girl who falls in love with another young actor and wants to marry him. Then the supposed father allows his real feelings to be seen. He is not the girl's father, but loves her and will not hear of her marrying anyone else.
As the third act is yet to be written, one knows what happens next. Mussolini has not had much experience lately to finish the play. After all a statesman, who is president of Council, Minister of War, Foreign Minister, Naval Minister and Aviation Minister all at the same time, he does not devote much time to playwriting.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Appreciation for Home Art.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN the rotunda of the Mercantile Library has reposed these many years the most exquisite piece of statuary of any modern sculpture, the most simply graceful production of any feminine sculptor the world has known and a great work of the only artist in form to whom St. Louis may lay claim. (I do not use the term of sculpture because Miss Harriet Hosmer had antipathy for it and requested me not to describe her as one.)

I have seen many of the master marbles of Christendom, but never anything that needs as little labeling as the Beatrice de Cenci. It appeals to those without learning or artistic taste as strongly as to the initiate. Its beauty of grace, simplicity and purity have a soothing fascination that is needed to justify sculpture in the minds of those in moderate means. It is easily the best in this city; the incarnation of the elegant and modest, the materialization of the ideal. It would be a very graceful deed for the Mercantile Library to donate that ornament to the City Museum, that all our citizens might have opportunity to admire to realize what true art means and to learn that St. Louis sent one artist into the world to stand immortal among great sculptors. The name of Harriet Hosmer probably means nothing to 90 per cent of St. Louisans of today.

With Beatrice in the museum, where the populace could see it, half the population would soon learn that St. Louis has the chief artist in sculpture that the world has evolved. Halsey C. Ives told me that he would rather have that marble than any in the city.

Glad Pigeons Won Victory.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN Tuesday's issue of the Post-Dispatch was pleased to see that the pigeons around the city hall had won a victory. The man who suggested to give them whiskey probably thought there would be a chance for himself to get a drop.

If these birds have become a nuisance I would suggest that the Humane Society be given instructions to reduce the flock by trapping them alive without injury. This could be done after the breeding season, when there would be little chance of starving any squabs to death in the nest.

The Humane Society could kill them in a humane way and sell them on the market, the proceeds of which could be applied to their fund, as the society needs all the cash they can get. I understand. "A LOVER OF THE DOGS."

AMITY.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
THE wild children of the street are smart, but they are not smart.

The tramp, Christ Jesus, was not smart nor was Chatterbox or E. A. Poe. Nor were any of the really great men who have lived and died for others.

SIDNEY AVERILLA.

Columbia, Ill.
Asset, Not Potpie.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
YOUR splendid editorial of Wednesday on "Our Pigeons" I feel sure meets with the views of patriotic citizens generally.

Soaking with whiskey and then turning into potpie, after which has been stabbed in the dark, the noble creatures that served us faithfully as messengers in time of war, is a thought too sordid for words and unworthy of our great city.

By all means let us keep the pigeons. They not only add life and picturesqueness to the monotony of downtown streets, but, like the pigeons of St. Mark's Plaza in Venice, are a distinct asset to the city. No one can see the remaining spectacle of those friendly pigeons perched upon shoulders and hands of visitors while receiving their bounty, can fail to appreciate this fact. If we could be so fortunate as to create a similar colony within our new plaza it would be the best national advertisement that St. Louis can have and would bring thousands of visitors here annually. Let us make an asset, not potpie, out of our pigeons.

Scopes an "Every-Day Criminal."

TO the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
AFTER all, what was Mr. Bryan's latest and last offense against society? Nothing more grievous than that he stood willing to assist, and in fact did assist, in the conviction of a criminal. This much any decent, law-abiding citizen should be willing to do.

This question can never rightly come before a human tribunal for proper decision. Any such decision would be subject to appeal.

The modernists had hoped that this discussion of the truth or error of evolution might be forced into the trial; and by thus making a farce out of the trial, make a hero and martyr out of just an every-day criminal who had knowingly defied the laws of the State whose protection he expected. And now that the modernists find they have staked so much and lost, and are left with just a commonplace lawbreaker on their hands, from whose brow the pastboard halo was so ruthlessly torn, they are very much peeved. Sorry! Try again!

WALTER S. FLAGG.

GOV. BAKER AND HIS FRIEND.

Gov. Baker will not ask Dr. Enloe to resign from the State Board of Health and will not accept the doctor's resignation if tendered. According to Baker, no tangible evidence has been produced against Enloe, and, anyhow, it is all old stuff that occurred under a previous administration. He pretends to resent the effort to saddle this load on him or his administration.

His explanation is puerile and insincere. Baker is not standing by Enloe for any such reason. He is standing by Enloe because Enloe is his close personal and political friend.

What is the reputation of the State Board of Health between friends?

What is the public service between friends?

What is graft between friends?

It is true, of course, that the circumstances involving Dr. Enloe, of which two of his associates on the board complain, did occur under the Hyde administration. These circumstances have to do with applicants for license to practice medicine in Missouri with doubtful credentials, according to the board's standard. But the real meaning of the affair has just come to light, through the Post-Dispatch's exposure. Dr. Horton of Purdy is accused of having demanded and received money from applicants for examination on the ground of his ability to get them through by reason, it is alleged, of his professed influence with Dr. Enloe. No proof of Dr. Enloe's guilt has been produced, but a grave indictment has been returned against him by two members of the board, Dr. North, president, and Dr. Stewart, secretary, who have been quoted as saying that they will have to resign from the board if Enloe does not.

In the premises Dr. Enloe's duty is clear and so is Gov. Baker's. Enloe should have insisted upon a rigid inquiry and he ought to have offered his resignation pending the outcome of that inquiry. He has done neither. He has done nothing. He has remained silent and stood pat. Since Enloe failed to do what any self-respecting physician, jealous of his professional reputation, would have done, the Governor should have forced Enloe to resign. But the Governor is as blind to the proprieties and common decencies of the occasion as Enloe is.

Now what are Dr. North and Dr. Stewart going to do? They made their protest and submitted their ultimatum. They aroused high public expectation. Are they going to "follow through" or will they weaken under pressure and accept the Governor's rebuff? And what about the Medical Society, which adopted a resolution supporting the admirable position of Dr. North and Dr. Stewart? Will the society denounce the Governor and repudiate the tainted State Board of Health? Or will it weakly take its medicine and suffer a severe loss in prestige and public esteem?

Gov. Baker and his friend Enloe have put it up to Dr. North, Dr. Stewart and the Medical Society to make good or quit cold.

AT JUDGE GARY'S HOME.

Ordinarily, a man's personal habits are not proper subjects for public discussion, but Judge Gary, by his real for prohibition enforcement, has forfeited the right to draw a veil over his own drinking habits.

Thus, Capt. Statton, head of an anti-prohibition society, feels justified in calling attention to those habits. Capt. Statton says that champagne is habitually served in the Gary household, and that cocktails flow freely there.

If this is true, no matter whether the Gary liquor is come by legally or not, the leading spirit of the Committee of One Thousand is placed in an unhappy light.

THE CANCER STORY.

Our dear friends, the doctors, if we may refer so indiscriminately to cancer specialists and other highly scientific gentlemen, are disturbed. From their direction, ever since the publication of the discoveries made by Dr. Gye and Mr. Barnard, have come looks of alarm and annoyance, and pleas to "Sssh!" It is evident that the doctors regard the press as an enemy, terrible, totally indifferent to all conventions and amenities.

Just as the result of the Gye-Barnard researches, conducted under the auspices of the National Medical Research Council—a body, we are assured, of impeccable dignity and the highest standing—were about to be published in the eminently respectable London Lancet, a digest was prepared for the press. This digest, intimating that the virus of cancer had been isolated, was published throughout the world, causing great interest in medical and non-medical circles alike.

Although the press gave nothing but the facts, as transmitted to it by British medical authorities, the doctors ever since have been doing their best to hush up the whole matter, and to minimize its importance. This is being done, apparently, on the supposition that the Gye-Barnard researches are grossly misunderstood, and that the impression has been created that a cure for cancer has been found.

Scientists themselves receive such news with discreet and polite incredulity. Until the Gye-Barnard disclosures are amply verified by other scientists, a process which might take years, they withhold judgment and comment. That is admirable. But is there any reason why the news of the Gye-Barnard work should be studiously withheld from the public, especially when such a body as the National Medical Research Council has confidence enough in the work to inform the press of its results? Moreover, the fear that the publication will cause false hopes to rise in cancer victims is hardly justified. The Gye-Barnard story was written in very plain English and there is no good reason to think that cancer patients aren't able to understand its limited significance.

THE SHAME OF LOUISVILLE.

There is an organization in Kentucky that is determined to abolish horse racing, and if what it says is true about conditions in Louisville during the last Derby the fervor with which it is carrying on its crusade is easily understood.

"Never," we are told—"Never in any city could be found such a saturnalia of vice. From more than one victim we have it in black and white that meals ordinarily fifty to seventy-five cents cost from three to three and one-half dollars."

We find it difficult to believe that such ghastly practices were permitted. Somebody, we are inclined to think, is mistaken. Perhaps he was short-changed. Anyhow, the accusation is made, and unless it is refuted we shall be in favor of drenching Louisville with poison gas at five or six times the ordinary rate per drench.

THE BETHLEHEM STEEL INCIDENT.

A very nice point of ethics is brought up by the retirement of three high Bethlehem Steel officials as a part of a plan to effect economies and to avoid the necessity of reducing the wages of 10,000 laborers. One would think, however, that if Messrs. Johnston, Snyder and Tobias were valuable to the business their salaries would be cut and their services retained. Were their offices sinecures?

Usually when big industries find themselves facing hard times the wage earners are the first to be penalized. Closing down the factory is the common remedy for depressed business. New England woolen mills recently, in face of reduced earnings, cut the wages of 30,000 or more men 10 per cent. But, when a corporation must exercise economy, why should not high-salaried executives be required to accept some sacrifice? The Bethlehem Steel incident is an interesting application of the idea, as is the case of the small Lukens Steel Co., whose executives voluntarily accepted a 10-per-cent cut to avoid tremendous slashes in wages, although this did not prevent an equal reduction in the wages of 2000 men.

For the penalties, as well as the rewards, of business fluctuations to be distributed more equally is a high ideal for big business. Granting that slumps in business are often caused by influences far beyond the power of executives or wage earners to control, it is not uncommon to find wage earners suffering by reductions and lay-offs from the errors of executives who continue to draw their high salaries. In the Bethlehem Steel case there may be cynical comment to the effect that the resignation of the three officers was only a gesture, or that they were related to go anyway, yet the incident starts a train of thought which might have interesting consequences.

WE KEEP OUR COATS ON.

Hygienists insist that women dress much more sensibly than men. What if they do! What man with a drop of chivalric blood in his veins will be grudge woman this one little mark of superiority? With the general count so overwhelmingly in favor of man it does seem as if this slight concession may be granted woman, without arousing in man a selfish desire to equal or surpass women sartorially.

This noble attitude on the part of man is not satisfactory to the hygienists. They want men to ape the women in the matter of dress. Not literally, of course. They want us to discard collars and ties and wear open shirts. They would have us get rid of our coats, too. Collars and coats, they insist, are useless burdens during the hot months. They oppress and torture. If we had any gumption, they say, we should have gotten rid of them long ago.

We are opposed to this whimpering reform. Man is equipped to bear these burdens custom has imposed on him. Not only has he the physical strength to wear collar, cravat and coat, but he has the moral strength, the fortitude, the character to do it.

There are other reasons, too, why man should resist this insidious appeal. If man should appear to endorse the abbreviated vogue of the women by doing likewise, to what length, or rather, to what brevity, might not the women go? You know how they are. With the slightest encouragement they run riot. If any modesty is to be salvaged in this devilish, disabling age man must do it. It is a solemn mission. What a spectacle countless and collarless man would be in that role—or any role!

THE FIRST LAW OF NATURE—WHAT?

Another ancient shibboleth goes overboard if the dictum of the American Institute of Politics be accepted by human society. Self-preservation, according to the learned gentlemen gathered at Williams-town, Mass., in annual convocation for sociological survey and succor, is not the first law of nature. For something like 24 centuries we have assumed that self-preservation occupied premier place in the statute book of nature. The revised statutes of nature, it appears, must place race-perpetuation first. Harvard's erudite professor of plant morphology, Dr. Edward M. East, cast the first stone at the venerable shibboleth. He averred that when Socrates, swatted over the caput with a broom by his ternaunt spouse, Xantippe, ran out of the domicile yelling, "Self-preservation is the first law of nature!" the Athenian philosopher was wrong. After a learned discussion of birth control the rest of the savants, it is stated, agreed with Dr. East.

We learn from the Williams-town proceedings that unless birth control be practiced rather extensively our progeny must find new and more abundant food supplies. The United States, for instance, with approximately 110,000,000 people at present, is to become luxuriant when it attains the 200,000,000 figure.

But nobody seems to have sensed the fact that proper food distribution, and not merely food production, is the crying need of the world. Those smashers of Socrates surely must know this. Possibly they refrained because of consideration for the feelings of New England, the locale of the gathering, which adheres so strongly to the so-called protective tariff which interferes with the normal distribution of food as well as many other commodities. So after all, perhaps, those celebrities really know less than old Socrates knew.

BALLAD OF INTERNATIONAL DEBTS.

With a Double Refrain.
I sometimes think 'twas all a joke.

But I like France, for France is wet.
My head is high, although I'm broke—
We've paid our debt to Lafayette.
It seems we didn't pay enough.

For England's sour and France is slow,
We helped to treat the Germans rough.
But who the hell else do we owe?

They called us heroes in those days.
For what we got, 'twas doubly paid—
We've paid our debt to Lafayette.
I hope they have 'another quick.

We've paid our debt to Lafayette.
He helped us when we had a war.
And then we helped them trounce their foe.

Which brings the scales quite close to par.
But who the hell else do we owe?

We tramped the muddy miles away.
We drank what vin rouge we could get.
For what we got, 'twas doubly paid—
We've paid our debt to Lafayette.

The wine is gone, the bikes are past.
To other wars I'd gladly go.
For distance softens all too fast.
But who the hell else do we owe?

I sniffed some gas, I stopped a shell.
I even smoked "un cigarette."
Though Sherman says that war is hell,
We've paid our debt to Lafayette.

I hope they have 'another quick.
The mask I'll don, the bomb I'll throw.
These peaceful days near make me sick.
But who the hell else do we owe?

L'Envol.

As we forgive, forgive our debt—
We've paid our debt to Lafayette.
That score is paid, as well I know.
But who the hell else do we owe?

JOS. D. HEADE.

Frank Kent, who has been going up and down in the country to find out what the people are interested in, says there are no political issues. Except for prohibition and the Bible nobody cares what a public official thinks, and Frank says neither of these has anything to do with politics. Quite so, and if there are no more politics in the country we are heartily glad of it. They were a nuisance. It was hard to keep them out of any consideration of the public welfare, and they became at length a popular epithet. Thus asked by a European how we could have "instituted the League of Nations" and then stayed out of it, we answered, "Politics." Now to get rid of politicians, and then to live rationally in the enjoyment of one of the fairest parts of the globe. Thanks, Frank. You inspire us with an unsuspected hope and point the way to peace. Prohibition and the Bible issue are ephemeral. Politics are an old and we thought ineradicable curse.

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to express without bias the latest current of public opinion, as reflected by leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

AT THE PUBLIC CLUB.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.
THE Coolidge economy program is to accomplish its end in many ways.

There were certain spectacular ideas for achieving economy. There was the cutting down of the supply of towels and drinking cups and the office of the President. Then, memory serves, a plan for commencing the very last rub. To be important though small details of the eyes of official Washington to the that in the end the best results would be had in cutting down the Federal holders.

It is therefore somewhat surprising, although not surprising, to learn that Washington dispatch that the army of holders, instead of decreasing, is actually on the upgrade. On June 30, 1925, two million 543,231 Federal jobholders. In December, 1923, they had been reduced to 543,231. On Feb. 28, 1925, the number had risen to 558,095.

Under the circumstances, there is something almost prophetic in the statement that the cost of the government has not increased, and it will continue to increase. I do not mean the party is in power.

For such gifts of prophecy, however, praise. It is safe as prophesying that the sun will rise tomorrow morning and that Christmas day will fall on Dec. 25.

THE HAPPY VALLEY.
From the Alton Evening Telegraph.
ST. LOUIS is the twelfth city in the country in suicide percentage.

Who shows us that in sunny California where everybody is supposed to be happy all the time, they have more suicides anywhere else in this country. California held the first four places in Washington city on the Pacific Coast.

Then the pendulum swings over to Massachusetts cities, before it returns to the Pacific Coast and touches an Oregon for eighth place. It swings back to Pennsylvania for the ninth position in the States of Washington again, this time it goes back and touches St. Louis.

Diago, Cal., leads the whole country 45.2 for each hundred thousand population and St. Louis twelfth with 19.6. There is no significance in these figures as the Valley seems to be a place where the best place to live, but the good old west people become disgusted with life to such extent that they are willing to dare death from where born no traveler returns hasten their departure to it.

RETIRED CAPITALIST TO MANAGE ORCHESTRA

George R. Robinson of Kirkwood, Chosen for Post Once Held by Macmillen.

A new departure in the affairs of the St. Louis Symphony Society is embodied in the announcement that George R. Robinson of Kirkwood has been engaged as business manager at a salary said to be $7000 a year.

For a good many years the executive duties of the organization have been entrusted to professional orchestra managers such as A. J. Gaines, S. E. Macmillen and G. A. Baldini.

Robinson is a retired capitalist, who made a fortune as one of the founders of the Purina Mills. He is an amateur musician, and plays the piano and organ for his personal pleasure and that of intimate friends. He has for years been a confirmed attendant at the Symphony Orchestra concerts, and was during its earlier years an active member of the Municipal Theater Association. This will be his first experience, however, as executive head of a musical organization.

Robinson is at present in Hollywood, Cal., and is expected to take up his new duties on his return, on Sept. 1. He has announced the fact of his appointment in messages to personal friends here. It was confirmed today by a telegram from George D. Markham, acting president of the Symphony Society, who is spending the summer at Dublin, N. H.

"I am thankful," Markham wired to the Post-Dispatch, "that the society is to be managed by a gentleman of Mr. Robinson's solid attainment, musically enthusiasm and business experience."

At the offices of the Symphony Society, in the Odeon, it was stated today that, although no official announcement has been made, it is understood the appointment was offered to Robinson and accepted.

That he will assume the office of his return from Hollywood. This appointment provides the Symphony Society with its third business manager in four months. The resignation of S. E. Macmillen, the appointment was given, Baldini on April 14. After an incumbency of only seven weeks, one of which were spent in an effort to book the orchestra's 1924 spring tour, Baldini resigned in June. Macmillen was then engaged specially to book the tour, and the orchestra's summer transactions have been handled by members of the Board of Directors and the society's regular office staff.

He could not remember whether he yelled at the men or not, but Hogan swore that Moberly did shoot a halt. Witnesses swore that while in a drug store, having the wounded men under treatment just after the shooting, Moberly admitted he only held up his hand as a because it shortens life.

High blood pressure gives little warning, and until certain symptoms take hold you do not know it. They are head pains, flushed face, hot flashes, dizzy spells, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, and nervousness.

Only a purely vegetable medicine like Norma that drives out the waste matter which clogs the system and forces the heart to do extra work can reduce high blood pressure. Other bottles of Norma will bring reduction enough to stop the symptoms which distress and worry you.

Norma is a physician's prescription. It worked so wonderfully in his personal practice that it has now been placed in drug stores so that people who are unable to obtain it, check the sincerity of high blood pressure by referring it with

PRISON WARDEN'S RESIGNATION IN GOVERNOR'S HAND

Baker Has Delayed Acceptance "Because of Some Other Plans Concerning the Penal Board."

SUCCESSOR ALREADY HAS BEEN CHOSEN

Executive Explains Announcement Would Stave Off Pressure by "Some of These Hungry Birds."

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 10.—
An impending shakeup of the State Penal Board by Gov. Baker, forecast in the Post-Dispatch, was verified yesterday when the Governor stated he had in his possession the resignation of Warden S. T. Nix, but had delayed acceptance of it "because of some other plans I have concerning the Penal Board."

Baker was asked if he had received the resignations of any of the other board members. "That is not necessary," he said. "All but one of the five commissioners are holdovers and I do not need their resignations. All that is necessary, if any action is taken concerning them, is for me to announce appointment of their successors."

"Of course, Nix will continue as Warden until I accept his resignation," Baker said yesterday. "And if I accept his resignation there need be no applicants, because his successor already is selected."

Baker explained this announcement would stave off pressure on him by "some of these hungry birds."

Rumors of Shakeup.
As told in the Post-Dispatch, rumors are current in political circles here of a shakeup involving possibly three of the five commissioners. The commissioners mentioned in this connection are Warden Nix, Superintendent of Farms William McGregor and Parole Commissioner A. H. Steinbeck.

The other members of the board are Dr. Cortez F. Enloe, close friend and political adviser of the Governor, who is chairman of the Penal Board, and John L. Burnett, Superintendent of Industries. Enloe has been under fire the past week because of demands by members of the State Board of Health that he resign from that board, of which he is a member. Charges of irregularities in purchases of supplies at the penitentiary also have been made.

The Governor admitted that the resignation of Nix was given to him immediately after Lonnie Af-fronti, a Clay County convict serving a sentence in the penitentiary for robbery, had been permitted to make a visit to friends and relatives at Kansas City, without a guard, about two weeks ago. While the resignation is declared to be due to this lapse in prison discipline, the Affronti matter is not considered the real cause. Considerable friction has developed at intervals in control of the prison, due to Enloe assuming virtually all the powers of management in his role of political chief of the prison.

Petition of Protest.
A petition signed by 800 residents of Clay County has been received at the Governor's office, protesting against Affronti having been permitted to go home, unguarded. Affronti's home is in Kansas City, but he was sent to the penitentiary from Clay County for 10 years for robbing and beating two elderly women near Excelior Springs in December, 1919.
He has been allowed trusty privileges at the prison for some time, as chauffeur for Superintendent of Farms McGregor.

The petition urged appointment of a new Warden at the prison.
Baker stated he had not yet read the petition, but knew of it through newspaper accounts.

Baker declined to discuss any further changes at the prison, other than to state he had some further plans concerning the Penal Board and would make announcements of his action when he got ready to do so.

Child Used in Robbery.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Aug. 10.
—Robbers who are believed to have used a small boy as an accomplice, yesterday removed approximately $5000 from the safe of a grocery store. Discovery of a boy's cap near a small window led police to believe that a child admitted the men. The window was screened from public view by sign-boards.

Negro Fatally Shot in Quarrel.
William Howard, a negro, of 4145 Gratiot street, died at City Hospital at 2:15 p. m. yesterday, an hour after he had been shot three times in a quarrel with another negro, while both were visiting a negro woman at 3386 Papin street.

TWO HOMERS, BOOSTS

TOTAL TO TWENTY-NINE

By blasting out a brace of homers yesterday, Hornsby widened the gulf between himself and his strongest competitor for the home run championship of the major leagues. His new total gives him a lead of five.

While "Gabe" Hartnett of the Chicago Nationals and Ken Williams of the Browns failed to break their deadlock at 24 each during the week, new runbats of batting prowess came from the middle of the heap.

Jimmy Bottomley, teammate of the pacemaker, cracked out three circuit blows and Al Simmons of the Athletics and Jake Fournier of the Dodgers lagged two apiece. Babe Ruth failed to raise his total of 11.

INTERCITY MATCHES TO FEATURE AMATEUR SHOW

Four matches between St. Louis and Chicago amateurs will feature the boxing show to be held at the Battery A Thursday night.

The Davis Cup selection committee last night cancelled the second round match between Vincent Richards and William M. Johnston, scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at Forest Hills, N. Y., and would be held today to decide whether tests between the players and desirable.

The committee explained that the action had been taken after a meeting "at which the members of the committee were unanimous in the opinion that a second contest Monday would probably result in another grueling five-set battle, greatly to the physical detriment to the players at a time when they should conserve their strength and energy for the international events just ahead."

Johnston defeated Richards Saturday but there was little to choose between them in games won, placements, service aces and errors. Richards was three times within a point of victory before his defeat.

Cards Can Regain 4th Place By Defeating Phillies Today

Bill Sherdel Will Pitch Against Jimmie Ring—Hornsby Two Home Runs and Triple—Blades Celebrates Return to Game.

By Dent McKimming.

With a chance to regain fourth place in the National League, which has suddenly developed into a three-club fight between the Cardinals and the Phillies, the Cardinals today face the Philadelphia club with their hopes of victory resting on the shoulders of Bill Sherdel.

Sherdel has won his last four games, going the full nine innings in each case and holding the opposition to a total of 11 runs, or less than three runs per game. Hornsby and his maulers have regained the batting form which blasts pitchers from the box, bowls over infielders and drops baseballs over the fence into Grand boulevard. Sherdel naturally is favored to win his game today.

Yesterday Allan Sathorn rode easily to victory on the crest of a wave of base hits. Hornsby himself set the fashion for his club by getting a pair of home runs and a triple. Ralph Shinnars hit a mile high in the right field seats and Ray Blades also smashed a line drive into the sun seats.

Sathorn Needed Help. Sathorn, then, was staked to a lot of runs. He needed them in the early innings he had great difficulty putting the ball where he wanted it. His lack of control had him in tight places in the first and in the second inning and then, in the third, Harper hit a home run with two on base and reduced Sathorn's three-run lead to nothing.

The timid element among the 8000 spectators called loudly for Sathorn's removal, but Manager Hornsby thinks he knows something about Sathorn's ability, as well as something about the advisability of yanking pitchers out of the box every time the rabbit baseball bounces over the fence for a home run. He stood by Sathorn and all came through the storm with all canvas set.

When it was over Sathorn had given only 7 hits, well scattered except in the third inning, and the score was 8 to 4 in the Cardinals' favor.

Exit the Baseball "Curio." Moreover, the Cards had driven out of the box one of the best pitchers in the league and a baseball curio, Clarence Mitchell, the only left-hander in the major leagues who uses the "spit ball." The defeat of Mitchell can have no good effect upon the morale of the Phillies.

Today, Jimmy Ring, who is upon occasion so good that he ties the best of ball clubs in knots, will oppose Sherdel. If Jimmy is right it will turn out to be a real ball game.

Blades Celebrates His Return.

Ray Blades celebrated his return to the game with a home run and some excellent base running. In the fourth inning, he earned a base on balls and by his antics off first base for hits of that kind.

Hornsby's first home run was a ripping line drive into the right row of the bleachers. He was no aid from the bleachers. He was no aid from the bleachers. He was no aid from the bleachers.

To Discuss Question of Return at Tonight's Meeting.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Although harmony has been re-established between the United States Football Association and the American Soccer League, which is now affiliated with the former on the same basis as the various State associations, a stumbling block has developed which may interfere with the participation of clubs of this league in the annual cup competition of the U. S. F. A.
Delegates representing the 12 clubs holding franchises in the American Soccer League met yesterday at the Hotel Astor and discussed whether or not the league teams should enter the cup and pay 15 per cent of the gross receipts to the national body, as provided for at the last meeting of the U. S. F. A. A vote showed that the delegates favored participation on the basis of 15 per cent of the net receipts, consisting of Fred J. Smith, president of the league; Nathan A. A. Thomas, Esq., representing the U. S. F. A.; and a representative of the United States Football Association. Most of the balance of the time was taken up with the arrangement of the annual schedule of inter-city week-end matches.

Local League to Act.
Although sentiment in the matter is not unanimous, it is highly probable that the St. Louis Soccer League club owners will vote to return to the U. S. F. A. cup competition next season provided the national body agrees to accept its share of the gate receipts on a "net" basis and not on the "gross" as now proposed.

Officials of the local organization declined to speak for the league as a unit but unofficial sentiment appears to lean decidedly toward a resumption of cup series games.
They will discuss the question at a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Hotel St. Louis. If the U. S. F. A. will meet the terms proposed by the American League, they see no valid reason why they should remain out of the competition. As the series is to be conducted henceforth, big professional league clubs will be exempt from preliminary round contests and there was always our chief objection to the competition, which is the system of taking its share from the net receipts instead of the gross gate will be accepted by the U. S. F. A.

In former years, the national association took 22 1/2 per cent of the gross receipts, while the local and grand finals, a share which was regarded as exorbitant. Our absence from the competition last season forced the U. S. F. A. to make reasonable concessions which could not possibly have been obtained otherwise.

Tilden Picks Cranston Holman To Win National Junior Title

By William T. Tilden II.
CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Over 100 junior tennis stars start play tomorrow for the National Junior and Boys' Championship on the courts of the South Side Tennis Club. The draw will not be made until late today so I cannot include a very accurate prophecy of the probable progress of the tournament by rounds.

The list includes all the leading young players in the country from the Pacific to the Atlantic. There is a question about the coming champion to succeed George Westcott, the present title holder, who is over age this year. Cranston Holman of San Francisco, one of the best players in the world by a wide margin and nothing short of a miracle or an accident can defeat him. Holman, by virtue of his defeat of Lott, Hennessey, Dr. King and taking sets from Alonzo and J. O. Anderson, has been regarded as a first-ten contender this year among the men and almost a Davis Cup possibility. He seems to out-distance any competitor in the Juniors by a wide margin.

One never can count too much on reputation in junior tennis. These boys are no respecters of mere fame and Holman may meet a surprise. California will have other representatives. Los Angeles is sending among others, young John Doe, the nephew of May Sutton Bundy. All these boys from California are dangerous.

Joe Smith Is Mentioned.
Texas has a strong pair in Berkeley Bell and Jim Quinn. Either of these youngsters might cause trouble. Emmett Pare of Chicago, and Joe Smith of St. Louis must carry the hopes of the Middle West. Pare, who up to now has been rather disappointing this year owing to ill health, is once more in condition and ready to show his best.

Henry Johnston of Boston is the boy who should give Holman the most dangerous competition. He would be my choice for the other finalist. New York, with Harry Wolf, Gregory Mangen and Le-moine Hensler, has a strong reputation, while Philadelphia has a contender in the person of A. L.

Braves Sign Pitcher FROM DUQUOIN, ILL.
By the Associated Press.
DUQUOIN, Ill., Aug. 10.—Bobby Edwards, former twirler on the Duquoin, Iowa, and West Frankfort teams of the Southern Illinois League, has just signed with the Boston Braves. Edwards has been pitching for the St. Petersburg club of the Florida State League this season and he is now rated as one of the best right-handers in that league.
After several years of independent baseball in Southern Illinois, Edwards went to the Terre Haute team in the Three-I League, his last professional engagement before going to the Florida circuit.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—James Mapes of Boston, son of Victor Mapes, American player, died of pneumonia in the American hospital yesterday. He had gained some note as a golfer.

Ellington Wins Series.
ELLINGTON, Mo., Aug. 10.—Ellington defeated Harnack yesterday in the third game of the series by a score of 6 to 2. Harnack, who was out of the series, was defeated by Ellington in the first game. Harnack struck out five batters. Keathley of Harnack got a home run.

BRYANT WINS FOREST HILLS TENNIS HONORS
Herbert Bryant is the first tennis champion of the Forest Hills Tennis Club in Dayton. He defeated Walter Finger in the deciding round of the men's singles event Saturday. The match went to four sets. Bryant winning, 6-1, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3.
Owing to his victory over Elmer Schwarz in the semifinal round, Finger was considered the favorite for the title, but Bryant's Kammann and Eggman Capture Two Singles and One Doubles Match.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 10.—Karl Kammann of St. Louis, winner of numerous tennis titles, including the local championship in 1923, and Teddy Eggman of East St. Louis, Cornell University champion, defeated the best local players, Arthur Orth, Jimmie Elmore and Lew Hardy, in singles and doubles matches of an intercity meet yesterday at the Memphis Tennis Club. The St. Louis stars made a clean sweep of the sagles.

The local players made many remarkable shots, but the play of Kammann and Eggman was the best seen here in years and the Memphis entries were outclassed by more consistent play. Kammann and Eggman, playing clean, fast tennis, displayed uncanny accuracy and worked with machine-like precision.
Kammann defeated Orth, formerly of New York, now of Memphis, in five sets, 7-5, 6-2, 4-6, 1-6, 6-0, and Eggman defeated Jimmie Elmore in four sets, 6-0, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6. In the doubles, Kammann and Eggman won in straight sets from Hardy and Orth, 6-2, 6-3.

The showing of Orth against Kammann, third ranking player of St. Louis, featured the day's play. Orth, a player of the smashing type, matched his drive and net play with Kammann's assortment of well-balanced strokes.

NINE ENTRANTS FOR FANCY DIVING EVENT AT COLISEUM POOL
The field of contestants in the fancy diving event of the city championship swimming tournament to be started tomorrow night at the New Coliseum pool, was increased to nine by the receipt Saturday night of an entry from John Baker, representing Marquette Swimming Club. Baker's entry makes a total of 30 swimmers who will compete in the five events.

Welda Meyers, winner of this year's Municipal championship; Dick Hawdon, Clifford Gentry and Tommy Callahan, a former city title holder, are the favorites.
Winners of tomorrow's contests will be awarded medals, while those capturing first place in two subsequent meets will receive the championship trophies. A program of three events for men and two for women will be held each Tuesday night.

FRENCH SPEED BOAT, UNIQUE IN DESIGN, CAN MAKE 90 MILES
By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 10.—The French champion boat which will be raced on the Detroit River late this month against the American team in the British International Harmsworth trophy race, is a 34-foot one-step hydroplaner, powered with two Bugatti motors of 16 cylinders each.

The boat is capable of doing around 90 miles an hour and has a specially designed hull described as revolutionary in its construction.
Steadiness was too much for him in the final round.
The doubles event was decided last week Bryant and Finger taking the title by defeating Schwarz and Charles Bray.

Ruth Removed for Pinch Hitter, Mighty Batter no Longer Feared

Yankee Management's Eagerness to Put Big Box Office Attraction Back in Lineup Before He Had Recovered, Thought to Have Hurt Babe's Morale.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—It is not of record that a fish monger ever replaced Gall-Curtel at the Metropolitan; yet an incident only slightly less significant occurred at the Yankee Stadium yesterday. Our Mr. Ruth was removed for a pinch hitter. It has come to that.
This action supposedly was taken by the worthy Miller Huggins because he deemed that the new man was more likely to drive in a run. It would have caused a small sensation a year ago, but today it passed almost without comment. Apparently pinch hitters are supposed to be more potential nowadays than the man who once revolutionized baseball with his slugging. There was nothing the matter with the physical Ruth, as far as the eye could reach.

Ruth's Hitting Weak.
As a matter of fact, his health at the moment probably is as good as it ever was. During recent days he has obliged with several field plays of more than ordinary merit and his work on the bases is good. If, and when, he gets out. It has not been often enough to make the thing monotonous. Something psychological has happened to Ruth since his return from the hospital. He still has an eye for good and bad balls at the plate, but he seems to have lost the trick of hitting consistently.
The latest published averages list him as hitting .273 with a home run total of 11. His last game because he deemed that the new man was more likely to drive in a run. It would have caused a small sensation a year ago, but today it passed almost without comment. Apparently pinch hitters are supposed to be more potential nowadays than the man who once revolutionized baseball with his slugging. There was nothing the matter with the physical Ruth, as far as the eye could reach.

He has wasted more screaming foul balls than any man in baseball this season, but the business of hitting them into safe territory aping the threshold of fame as a contender for lightweight title laurels. He started his career as a bantam and has defeated many topnotchers of the various weight divisions.
Mandell's most impressive performances were recorded after he stepped into the junior lightweight class about a year ago. In the past year he has won popular decisions over Johnny Dundee, Jack Bernstein, Babe Herman, Eddie Kid Wagner and Sid Terris.

Mandell Shows Fans His Paces

Classful Lightweight Boxer Shows Dazzling Speed in Training for Ward.

A lightning two-round sparring workout with Eddie Goldberg, local amateur featherweight favorite, gave St. Louis fistic fans their first glimpse of Sammy Mandell, Rockford lightweight star, in training yesterday afternoon at the National Gymnasium. Mandell is here for a 10-round battle with Bobby Ward of St. Paul, scheduled as the main event of an outdoor boxing card at Jofferson Barracks tomorrow night.

Mandell's display of speed, skill and ringcraft in Sunday's workout convinced the spectators that Ward is destined to receive an artistic lacing at the hands of the clever Rockford battler if his setto goes the full distance. The pace set by the Rockford flash was entirely too strenuous for Goldberg, who was ready to quit after the first three-minute round.

Mandell Barely of Age.
Although he has been an active campaigner the professional boxing game for five years, Mandell is only 21 years old and just approaching the threshold of fame as a contender for lightweight title laurels. He started his career as a bantam and has defeated many topnotchers of the various weight divisions.

Mandell's most impressive performances were recorded after he stepped into the junior lightweight class about a year ago. In the past year he has won popular decisions over Johnny Dundee, Jack Bernstein, Babe Herman, Eddie Kid Wagner and Sid Terris.

Only the CARELESS Do You Push Your Luck

Cutting Down the Death-Toll of Motorists' Carelessness

The railroads of the United States are constantly and effectively striving to save human life and prevent accidents where their right-of-way crosses public highways. Warning bells, cross-gates, flash signals, and numerous printed and painted warnings admonish the motorist not to take chances.

That this work has been effective is evidenced by the fact that during the year 1924 one hundred and nineteen less deaths were caused by grade-crossing accidents than in the year 1923, and that an even better record is being made for 1925, as shown by the fact during the first half of the year seventy-two less deaths occurred than during a similar period in 1924.

The railroads can't do it all. You must do your share for safety. There is no better advice that can be given you than the three words so universally used—"Stop, Look and Listen" when you approach a railroad track. Remember that accidents occur when you are trespassing on the railroads' right-of-way, that the train cannot leave the tracks, and that if it were necessary for trains to stop at every grade crossing it would play havoc with America's unexcelled transportation system. The motorist should come to a dead stop and look both ways.

American railroads are building under-passes and overhead bridges as rapidly as their capital will permit. In the meantime, do your part for safety.

PENNANTS CLINCHED IN FOUR MUNICIPAL BASEBALL LEAGUES

Lischko Indians Hold Record With Fifteen Straight

De Smet, Y. M. H. A. and Heitz Teams Also Sure of Flags.

The decisive stage was reached in the Sunday leagues of the Municipal Baseball Association yesterday when four pennants were won and two others virtually captured.

The Lischko Indians in the City League, the Y. M. H. A. in the Empire League, DeMet in the Knights of Columbus League and the Heitz team in the Froebel Grounds League were the winners of the group flags. All will go into the eliminations which are scheduled to start Sept. 5.

It was the sixteenth straight victory for the Lischkos without losing a game. They won in their usual decisive manner, defeating the Lynton T. Blocks, 16 to 9, and batting out 19 hits.

The Y. M. H. A. just nudged out the Glascos, 12 to 11, in another hard-hitting affair, Davidson of the winners making three home runs. The Heitz team was victorious over the Tiemanns by a tepid score, 18 to 6.

Seven straight for DeSmets. DeSmet Council in the Knights of Columbus League defeated DeAndria in a ninth-inning rally for its seventh consecutive victory and its second half pennant. The split season is employed in this league and no playoff will be necessary. DeSmet also won the first half flag.

In the Mercantile League, the Donnelly Stars are regarded as the ultimate pennant winners, as they have a full two-game lead with only three contests left to play. They won over the Swans yesterday, 9 to 5. The only other team in the running is the Daus, who beat Rock Island yesterday.

Despite a double over Perfection Chapter in the DeMolay League, St. Louis Chapter is looked upon as the probable winner of the flag because of a two and a half game lead. Next Sunday, the chapter will probably decide the issue.

Three contenders in Independent League was finally narrowed down to three yesterday when the Melietos took the lead over the Daus and dropped them into fourth place and a half a game out of the calculation. Their game was the best of the day, the final score being 2 to 2. The final score being 2 to 2. The final score being 2 to 2.

The day leaves the Falcons in possession of first place by the same one-and-a-half game lead they held last week. The Falcons are second, with the Shells third by two games.

A double tie for first, unusual at this stage of the season, has obtained in the Highland League where the Highlanders defeated the Tigers and tied their percentage.

A home run by McShane was the deciding factor of the contest.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—No change occurred in the raw sugar market early today.

Spots were quoted at 4.40c duty with no sales reported. Trading in Wheat futures were of moderate volume early today but prices advanced to be well divided and closed with little variation in prices. Breadstuffs of the spot market restricted any aggressive movement and prices were not unanchored from the previous close. The refined sugar was firmer with prices advanced to 1.6 points higher, although the flat still ranged 5.30c to 5.50c for fine granulated. A fair inquiry was reported and withdrawals on old contracts continued heavy.

ESCAPED CONVICT TAKEN IN ROUNDUP

Man Arrested on Free Bridge Found to Be Armed—Deserter Also Held by Police.

Ninety-eight arrests were made yesterday and last night, including 20 men taken in 13 dry law raids. Forty-nine were held as general robbery suspects and two were held charged with carrying concealed weapons.

Among the last was a man stopped on the Free Bridge by detectives last night. He had a .32 caliber revolver in his pocket and a .32 automatic was found in a bundle which he was carrying. Under examination he admitted he was Walter J. Motnick, 20 years old, and that he had escaped from the Jackson (Mich.) penitentiary last October after serving part of a five to fifteen year sentence for forgery. Detectives Doyle and O'Rourke, who arrested him, will be eligible for a $100 reward.

Earlier in the day the Free Bridge detail, under Detective Sgt. Behnken, stopped a man who said he was Corporal Edward L. Boudier, a deserter from the Sixth Cavalry, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. He said he had already entered his second enlistment but deserted Tuesday when a Captain whom he did not like was assigned to his troop. He will be delivered to military authorities at Jefferson Barracks today.

A 250-gallon still was found in operation in a garage in rear of 5314 Bischoff avenue yesterday morning by Detective Sgt. Schoening and his men, who smelled the mash cooking and followed the scent. A man who gave his name as Charles Farina of the Bischoff avenue address was arrested in the garage. Thirteen 5-gallon cans of alcohol and almost 10,000 gallons of mash were seized. Antonio Doretta, owner of the house behind which the garage is located, was arrested, but declined to know anything about the still.

INTERNATIONAL SHOE OFFICER INTERESTED IN RESERVOIR BID

W. H. Moulton Says Brother-in-Law Assisted Water Commissioner. May Get Supervisory Job.

W. H. Moulton, vice-president of the International Shoe Co., is one of the financial backers of the Missouri Engineering & Construction Co., which is the low bidder on the new 100,000,000-gallon reservoir to be built by the city on Olive street road between Warson and Bonhomme roads, St. Louis County.

Francis T. Curtis, Assistant Water Commissioner and a brother-in-law of Moulton, probably will become supervisor of construction for the new company in the event the contract is let to it. Moulton admitted. Curtis advised Director of Public Utilities Wall that he had been offered the position and was considering acceptance. The contract probably will be let tomorrow or Friday by the Board of Public Service.

Moulton said the financial stability of the company was unquestioned and that a prominent St. Louisan, now out of the city, was associated with him in it. Paul G. Palmer, a bond salesman, is president. The Missouri Company's bid was $1,088,618.10, which was $77,000 below the next lowest bid and $100,000 below the city's estimate.

BOY THREATENS GIRL'S FATHER Revolver Found on Lloyd Haberstroh When Arrested by Police.

Valentine Herrmann of 3448A Alberta avenue told the police last night that when he upbraided Lloyd Haberstroh, 19 years old, of 4321 Wyoming street, for bringing his daughter, Liola, 17, in at midnight after an all-day outing, that the young man threatened to shoot him.

When the police arrested Haberstroh at Arkansas and Alberta avenues he was carrying a loaded revolver.

Hurt in Row Over Piece of Chicken A man, who applied at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium for treatment of a lacerated scalp yesterday afternoon, identified himself as George Bressler, 28 years old, a news agent, living at 4036A McPherson avenue. He said he had suffered the injury in a quarrel with a brother, in an argument over a piece of chicken, served at dinner at their mother's home, 2437 Franklin avenue.

NIGHT-BLOOMING blossoms grow more profuse, blooming gaily upon the smartest new evening gowns. Made of the sheerest, gauze-like materials, there are perfectly huge roses, passion flowers, magnolias, chrysanthemums, dahlias and poppies, each one perfectly simulating the natural tints of the flower represented.

Smart to the rim is the black velvet hat, whose rim is of colored Milan straw, to match the chiffon or crepe de chine summer frock with which it is worn. The velvet hat seems to be coming into its own, and by fall will probably dominate the millinery modes.

Not caring how, during their colors may seem, tailored slip-on gloves of capeskin are appearing in bright red, Kelly green and tangerine shades. Worn with navy blue rep or twill tailleur dresses, they will probably enjoy great popularity in the early fall, for upon the vividly colored accessory depends the chic of a dark wool frock suit.

Fallie cannot fail to gain fashion recognition when it is developed into a scarf and purse set, such as is being worn by the best dressed women at mountains or shore resorts this season. Fallie ribbon, extremely wide, is used in forming the scarf, and a narrower width suffices for the flat, envelope bag. A deep fringe finishes both scarf ends. The more vivid the color, the more popular the scarf set, for high colors seem to be more favored each day.

White wins its way in summer hosiery, being preferred to nude or other shades when worn with white shoes. Novelty white silk hose have colored floral or bird motifs painted or embroidered just below the knee, and white lisle or cashmere sports hose are often cloaked in the same color as the kid trimming on white slippers.

Facing cheerfully whatever needs may arise, the white wool tailored coat is faced in a bright shade, forming a vivid contrast to the rest of the snowy garment, which is the rage of the summer and is for both daytime wear and informal evening occasions.

SPRING LAMB. SPRING lamb is one of the most useful summer meats. The leg may be boned, stuffed and trussed for roasting and is then very easily carved. Or if roasted with the bone in, it may be served with mint sauce. All bones and trimmings should be put with a can of tomatoes and some soup greens into the soup pot and cooked for an hour and a half, then strained. After which it should be cooled, the grease removed, then reheated and seasoned, then it can be set aside for soup for the next day.

LAMB CROQUETTE WITH PEAS. Mince fine a half pound of cold cooked lamb. Melt a half ounce of butter in a frying pan and cook in it a small onion minced fine, not browned. Then stir in a tablespoon of flour, a small cupful of rich stock, and cook gently until blended, then add the meat, pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, pepper salt and a saltspoon of sugar. Stir until well blended

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

LITTLE GRAINS OF "JOLLY"

MY daughter, I charge thee, consider the way of a man with a woman; for the woods are full of jolliers and the jolliers full of subtlety.

Behold, of jolly, there be seven times seven varieties and not one of them is hard to swallow.

Lo, there is the bluff and hearty jolly of the "platonic friend"; the "nice little pal"; and "good old scout" line of jolly; the pat-on-the-back-and-carry-your-own-suitcase variety, wherewith he warmeth the heart and disarmeth the suspicion.

Likewise, there is the subtle and cautious jolly of the artful dodger, wherewith he seeketh to please a woman's vanity, but committeth not himself. He remembereth the dress which thou worst the night before last; he knoweth the EXACT color of thine eyes; he gazeth long and approvingly at the dimple in thine elbow. He is full of sighs and glances and vagueness.

And there is the gentle jolly of the married flirt, who seeketh to charm thee with the "thoughtful act." He removeth the stone from thy path; he lifteth the burden from thine hands; he carryeth thy parcels. He doeth the "I'll-take-care-of-you-little-girl" stunt. He is SO fatherly!

Yea, and the frank and intensive jolly of the Don Juan, who stoopeth not unto hints and insinuations, but openly praiseth the beauty of thy hands and the wonderful curve of thy lips; who noteth the glint of the sun upon thy hair and raveth over the reflection of the moonlight in thine eyes.

And the patronizing jolly of the sheik who congratulateth thee upon thy charms, as one who would say, "Oh, thou lucky little woman! Behold, who admireth thee! Look, who thinketh thee worthy of his attention! Even I, the collector of hearts and tamer of women!"

And the feeble jolly of the youth with a "line," which is made up of canned compliments and stale flowers of praise.

Verily, verily, there be many kinds of jolly, and each man shall offer thee his own favorite brand. Yet be not deceived by their wiles; for all roads lead to Rome, so do all varieties of jolly lead to a kiss!

And with little drops of applesauce and little grains of jolly will they continue all their days to feed the soul of woman and stimulate her vanity.

For they know her weakness!

Serving Fruit Attractively.

THERE is so much fruit used on the modern table, that the housewife has developed many attractive ways in which it may be served.

In serving watermelon, cut the melon in half, around, instead of length ways. Hollow out the meat by the desertspoonful, free it of seeds, cut a slice off the bottom of the shell, so that it sets squarely, fill it with cracked ice, let stand until cold. Then leave a little ice in the bottom and fill in with the melon balls. Place a small bit of cotton under the melon shell, covering it with grape leaves. One half will hold the melon and the two halves prepared in this way and it is a very pretty way to serve it. The cotton takes up the extra water so that the tray does not get sloppy in appearance.

Cantaloupes, after chilling, can be served with a filling of ice cream. Sometimes we find the melon peeled thickly, then halved lengthways, rolled in powdered sugar and served on a mound of cracked ice.

Peaches sometimes are peeled, stoned, dipped in cordial, then in sugar, and are placed, hollow up, on a pretty dish and filled with whipped cream. Or they are filled with chopped marrows and topped with ice cream. Again, they may be pared and cut in segments from the stones and dusted with sugar, then served with whipped or plain cream.

Grapes are always prettiest washed, cooled and then served on their own glossy leaves. Large grapes skinned and seeded make a nice addition to the fruit cocktails of different kinds.

Applesauce Cake.

Cream together one and a half teaspoonful each of cloves and cupfuls of sugar and three-quarters of a cupful of butter. When creamed, add a large beaten egg, then a cupful and a half of good smooth applesauce. Mix together two and three-quarters of a cupful of flour, a saltspoonful of salt, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, a half ginger, and a little grated nutmeg. Add the juice and grated rind of a fresh lemon to the sugar mixture, then stir and beat all smooth. When beaten, add a cupful of seeded raisins and a quarter cupful of finely chopped or ground nuts. Turn into a buttered baking pan and bake in a medium oven.

Grilled Ham With Puffy Omelet. Cut thin slice of ham in four pieces, cover with boiling water for 10 minutes and broil in pan quickly. For the puffy omelet separate five eggs and add to the yolks of the eggs three tablespoons of cold water. Beat with fork to blend.

Whip the whites of the eggs until dry and stiff. Then cut and fold in the yolks of the eggs, combining the yolks with the stiffly beaten white of the eggs. Turn in smoking hot skillet containing three tablespoons of butter. Bake in moderate oven for 12 minutes.

Peter Rabbit Sees an Accident

None from danger, c'er is free;

Accidents are bound to be.

—Old Mother Nature.

YOU should have seen Danny Meadow Mouse scamper across the Laughing Brook on the grassy old log which stretched from bank to bank. He didn't waste any time about it. It just happened that Peter Rabbit was sitting near the other end of that old log and saw Danny when he came skipping across.

"For goodness sake where did you come from?" exclaimed Peter.

"I came from the other side," cried Danny. "Where do you suppose I came from?"

"What are you doing so far from home?" persisted Peter.

"I'm going back home just as fast as my legs will take me," replied Danny and disappeared in the grass.

Peter watched him out of sight and then continued on his way up the Laughing Brook, past the Smiling Pool, along the Laughing Brook again until finally he was in the Green Forest. There he spent the night. It was just after daylight and Peter was preparing to go home to the dear old Briar-patch when there came up a sudden storm. It thundered, it lightened and the wind blew. My goodness, how the wind did blow! Peter found a hollow log, where he was very comfortable and very dry and out of which he could peep.

Suddenly there was a dreadful crash close to him. Peter was so frightened that he jumped out of his comfortable, dry hiding place. Then he discovered that a big limb had been broken off of a tall head tree close by and had fallen close to that old log. Peter looked up to see where the limb had come from. He was just in time to see a small form glide down from the stub of that broken limb high up in the tree. It was Mrs. Timmy the Flying Squirrel. She sailed over to another tree, ran up it, sailed back to the dead tree from which the limb had broken, ran up it and disappeared in the end of that stub. "She has a nest there!" exclaimed Peter to himself, "she was living there! My, it is lucky that her nest wasn't in that part of the branch that fell.

"I never was so thankful in my life," said little Mrs. Timmy.

I wonder if she has babies up there. If she has I'm afraid they'll get wet."

But just then it stopped raining. In a few minutes the sun broke out. Almost at once Peter saw the head of little Mrs. Timmy as she peeped out from that hollow stub high above his head. She saw Peter almost at once. She glided down, for you know she cannot fly, although she is called a Flying Squirrel, and landed on a stump not far away. There she sat looking at that broken branch, beside which Peter was sitting.

"I never was so thankful in my life," said little Mrs. Timmy. "What are you thankful for?" demanded Peter. "I should think you would be anything but thankful."

"I'm thankful," replied Mrs. Timmy, "that matters are not worse than they are. I'm thankful that my nest was not in the part of the branch that fell. Oh, dear, what a dreadful wind it was! And now I've got to move."

"Where are you going to move to?" asked Peter.

"I don't know," replied little Mrs. Timmy. "I hope it won't be far, for it will be a dreadful job to move my family very far. Excuse me, Peter Rabbit, I must go look for another house."

ODD FACTS

The love which is often poetically described as a spring "malady" has now been given a promiscuous explanation. We are told that it is the additional moisture of the season that causes people to write poems, fall in love and shun work.

Only two "donkey wells" now remain in England. The one at Kenworth, near Dunstable, was built about 1660. In these wells donkeys walk inside a huge wheel, causing it to revolve and draw water from the depths of the earth.

A habit of vomiting food may be a purely physiological process described. If, however, the food on the part of the stomach is not unduly care and attention, it is repeated on other occasions for quite a different reason: as, as a definite demand for food.

Every effort should be made to the child in a calm and peaceful state of mind at mealtime. If tired or sulky or greatly excited, he probably will show a lack of appetite, and food may be difficult to him.

THE INS AND OUTS.

THE Sheriff can't break into jail. And those inside can not break out. While lawyers fight with tooth and nail to find out what it's all about. The Court, pursuant to a writ, will solve the ins and outs of it.

The Board of Public Welfare names the keeper of the booby hatch. Whereas the Sheriff justly claims the right to hold as well as catch. And says it's only right that he should be the keeper of the key.

I have heard of various trick taxicabs, but this New York cab rings the bell.

You can't tell what those taxicabs will do. Maybe it was looking for a place to park.

The man on the sand-box says in view of the rapid encroachment of filling stations on residence property there ought to be a zoning law permitting only a certain number of stations to a zone.

At that, which ever side may win. The crooks would rather be no doubt. Upon the outside looking in. Than in the inside looking out. They'd like to see some guy prepare a writ to get them out of there.

QUITE SO.

While the Sheriff and the jailer are squabbling over who shall have charge of the jail the Court holds the key to the situation.

WOMEN SHOOT AT STOREKEEPER IN HOLDUP ATTEMPT

BULLET CLIPS MERCHANT'S SHIRT

Robbers Had Asked for Ice Cream Cones—Two Suspects Are Arrested Near the Scene.

Two young women, demanding money at the point of revolvers, shot three shots at James M. Shepard, 39 years old, in his confectionery at 5437 North Broadway, last night. Their range was a breast of Shepard's shirt, bare-grazing the skin. Shepard was wearing the shirt at work today. It perforated by two holes, about two inches apart—where the bullet pierced the shirt, the other hole it emerged.

The police have two women under arrest. If they are the women shot at Shepard, it was the first time a woman had been shot in their capture. They are arrested within a block of Shepard's store, 30 minutes after the holdup, driving toward the store in an automobile bearing a license number which was taken to the police as carried by the car in which the women robbers fled.

Ask for Ice Cream Cones.

It was near closing time—10:30 o'clock when the women entered Shepard's store. They were talking of the heat and asked Shepard for ice cream cones. "They will not go off," they remarked. Shepard was handing over his ice cream when the women, facing the counter, popped up two cherry cones, then there was a tapping on the counter under his nose and he saw a barrel of two revolvers.

"Come on, stick 'em up," one of the women commanded. "Yes," said the other, "give us your money."

"I've got no money," Shepard replied.

"Oh, yes, you have; come on, stick it over," the first woman told him, and she moved toward the end of the counter as if anticipating his dash from behind the counter.

Three Shots Fired.

Shepard did dash, yelling at the top of his voice. As he passed the counter at the end of the counter, he fired. That was the shot that struck Shepard's shirt. There were two other shots before he reached the back door and safety. He was found today to have embedded itself in a counter.

Millard Boatright had been sitting in the front yard of his home, five doors south, at 5423 North Broadway. A sedan automobile had driven to the curb and he had seen two women alight. The women went in the direction of Shepard's store. Millard heard three shots. He saw the two women coming back toward the store—not running, but hurrying. They entered the car and it was driven off. He hailed another car and told the driver to get the license number of the car. The license number was 27-4114 Westmoreland. The car was a 1937 Buick, 6008 North Broadway. It returned in a few minutes and reported a license number that was the same as the one that Boatright caught.

Two Women Arrested.

Thirty minutes after the holdup, the police saw a sedan automobile leaving the number that had been reported by Willoughby. In it were two women and two men. The women were Mrs. Margaret Griffin, 29, of 3132 North Newmarket, wife of Leo Griffin, city fireman, who was in the car; and Mrs. Griffin's sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Bakersmith, 27, of 2102 Fallon street, a widow. The second man described himself as Joseph Allen, 27, of 4114 Westmoreland place, a paperhanger.

Today at the Circuit Attorney's office, Shepard said the women were of the general appearance of the women who pointed revolvers at him. The wife, who had run to a window in her home a few doors away after the shots were fired, said one of the women who fled from the store wore a pink dress such as Mrs. Griffin wore. Boatright identified the women as to general appearance.

Warrants charging attempted robbery in the first degree were issued against the women. The men were released.

Searching the neighborhood, the police found in different spots two revolvers. One had two discharged shells; the other one discharged shell.
